Pensamientos What Happened to Us?

Some of you may have attended the 20th year Chicano activist anniversary in 1989 en San Antonio, Texas. Maybe some of you went to the activist reunion en Dallas, Texas en 2009. In 2012, we held a reunion here in Austin, Texas of those who were active during the years of the Raza Unida Party. Close to 200 people came from all over. Some said it was going to be, "El ultimo adios."

And while some say que "la revolución no ha terminado." it is true we have not seen the kind of activity that once had us in front of TV cameras and on the front page of newspapers in the 1960s and 1970s. Many of us have reduced our profile to raise families, earn a living or focus on a career.

But like that Japanese soldier at the end of World War II, there are still some of us who have refused to give up or stop being activists. Some of us, like the Japanese soldier, have not heard the news that the "war" is over. Seguimos peleando la causa. ¿ Por qué?¿ Qué fue la causa?

When we look around us, we still see the same poverty, injustice, discrimination and poor education that we once stood up and denounced. Granted it, it is not the same people who are poor today. But what is the same is the injustice, discrimination and the bad education. 40 years ago the high school dropout rate for Chicanos was terrible! Today the dropout rate hovers around 40%. While it is true that more and more Latinos are going to college and becoming professionals, it is also true that more and more Latinos are leaving school, filling the prisons and jails and stuck in poor paying jobs. Where is the outrage? Where is the coraje that once led us to fill the streets with protest signs and gritos?

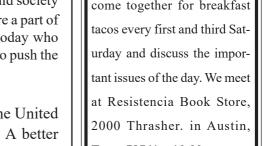

What has changed? Did we, who were once the proud Chicano activists change? Or did society change? Does history truly move in cycles and thus the activism that we were once were a part of in the 1970s something that shall return at a future date? I am sure there are many today who ponder these questions often. I am sure there are those who still struggle with how far to push the envelope in their respective cities and town today.

In the coming months we will hear more and more about who hopes to lead the United States into the future. Will it be Donald Trump? Will it be someone else? A better question is will we be participants in shaping the future? What happened to us?

La jueza del condado de Harris, Lina Hidalgo, respalda a Elizabeth Warren para presidenta

Houston, TX - La campaña de Warren for President anunció que Lina Hidalgo, la primera mujer y la primera latina en ser elegida jueza del condado de Harris, ha respaldado a Elizabeth Warren. La jueza Hidalgo es la principal oficial ejecutiva del condado de Harris, hogar para casi 5 millones de personas en el condado, y una estrella emergente en la política de Texas.

"Estoy increíblemente agradecida de contar con el apoyo de la jueza Hidalgo, quien ha sido una defensora persistente para el condado de Harris al trabajar para garantizar que el gobierno sea transparente, accesible y responsable ante cada residente", dijo Warren. "Estamos juntas en esta lucha para crear un gran cambio estructural y eso significa construir un movimiento que haga que nuestro gobierno trabaje para todos, en el condado de Harris, en todo Texas y a lo largo de nuestro país."

"Ya sea para combatir el cambio climático o aumentar las oportunidades para las minorías con pequeños negocios, Elizabeth tiene un plan para eso. Pero mi apoyo hacia ella no se debe a sus planes, sino por el tipo de persona que es. La Elizabeth Warren con la que hablas en persona es la misma Elizabeth que ves por los medios. Es una persona auténtica que te dirá exactamente lo que ella cree", dijo Hidalgo. "Su fuerte compás moral es inquebrantable, y sus decisiones se basan en hechos, no en influencias políticas. Ella y yo estamos alineadas en nuestros valores progresistas y creo firmemente que es la mejor persona para servir como presidenta de los Estados Unidos."

La jueza del condado de Harris, Lina Hidalgo, es la jefa del cuerpo gubernamental del condado de Harris y directora de la Oficina de Seguridad y Manejo de Emergencias del Condado de Harris. Supervisa un presupuesto de aproximadamente $5 mil millones que financia servicios e instituciones para el tercer condado más grande de la nación y el condado más grande de Texas. La jueza Hidalgo servirá como representante principal de Texas para la senadora Warren.

Desde que anunció su campaña presidencial, Elizabeth Warren ha visitado Austin, Dallas y Houston. Elizabeth recibió su licenciatura de la Universidad de Houston, donde también obtuvo su primer trabajo como profesora de derecho, y enseñó en la escuela de derecho de la Universidad de Texas en Austin. Ella creció en el estado vecino de Oklahoma y vivió en Texas por más de diez años.

Beto's Mexican Restaurant

3306 Oak Springs Dr, Austin TX 78721

Beto's Mexican Restaurants began with a window of opportunity after co-owners Lupita Bermudez and Norberto Nolasco were offered to take over La Placita back in 2010. Five years later, Beto's #1, would be another opportunity thrown at the co-owners. They were already looking for something more, and that opportunity would have perfect timing, and they accepted without any hesitation. Lastly, Beto's #2 would be an unexpected opportunity yet again. Lupita and Beto would have only two hours to decide if they wanted to reserve a running restaurant and take over it or let it go. They accepted, and the restaurant would become Beto's #2.

The Growth of La Raza Unida PartyAcosta50 years Ago - Part # 3

by Teresa Perez Acosta in the Handbook of Texas

In 1974, Raza Unida Party was ready for another try at the governor's race, with Muñiz once again its candidate. The party also ran a slate of fourteen men and two women for state representative from Lubbock, Houston, San Antonio, Austin, Falfurrias, Crystal City, and other cities.

As in the 1972 election, the RUP campaign literature emphasized the party's Chicano foundation; but it also asserted a desire to "ensure democracy for [the] many, not the few" and the need to preserve "human and n a t u r a l resources." In addition, it called for the prosecution of industrial polluters.

In his announcement for the governor's race on January 16, 1974, Muñiz sought to maximize the party's appeal to a broader spectrum of the state's voters, stressing RUP's ideas for new modes of transportation, improved funding of public education, better medical care, and solutions to urban problems. But RUP did not fare well in the 1974 general election. Muñiz got only 190,000 votes and posed no real threat to Briscoe's reelection. In addition, none of the sixteen candidates for the state House garnered enough support to win. The party's sole real victories were in Crystal City, where cofounder Gutiérrez was elected as Zavala county judge and the party successfully defended its dominance of other county offices. Nonetheless, by its numerous victories in South Texas, RUP had achieved Mexican-American political dominance in some cities and altered the state's political life. Several Mexican-American women were significant > participants at the state and national level. Evey Chapa, for instance, RUP's state executive committee provide for a female member; Virginia Múzquiz headed the RUP nationally from 1972 to 1974; and María Elena Martínez served as the last head of the party in Texas from 1976 to 1978.

Likewise, Evey Chapa, Ino Alvárez, and Martha Cotera have been credited with organizing Mujeres Por La Raza, the women's caucus within RUP.

In the four years after the 1974 election, RUP's fortunes diminished, with activism slowing except in some enclaves in South Texas. Even in Crystal City, its bedrock, RUP lost control in 1977. The party also suffered losses in its membership, and some of its original leaders, including Willie Velásquez, allied themselves with new political initiatives, such as the Mexican American Democrats.

Chapa, for instance, ensured that to party morale we to party morale were the arrests in July and November 1976 of former

RUP gubernatorial candidate

Ramsey Muñiz on drug charges.

He pled guilty to one count and was sentenced to fifteen years. The party was considerably weakened

as it entered the final and fatal

1978 election, when RUP

gubernatorial candidate Mario

Compean won only 15,000 votes.

At the election-day fiasco in 1978,

RUP lost state funds for its primary and was effectively eliminated as a party. Some historians have stated that RUP, with its various successes and failures, came at the right moment in Mexican-

American history in the state.

Writing in 1978 in The Tejano

ABOVE: RUP's Mario Compean at a yard meeting in Uvalde, Texas in 1978

Yearbook: 1519–1978, Philip Ortega y Gasca and Arnoldo De León noted that the establishment of RUP in the 1930s would have been "premature" because violence was still a common response to Texas Mexicans' political ambitions. Nevertheless, the authors also argue that RUP was neither a new phenomenon nor a "radical" one but a continuation of Tejano political initiatives. Nineteenth-century Tejanos had formed various movements, such as Botas and Guaraches and special benevolent associations, to defend their interests. RUP was intended to do the same for Mexican Americans in the 1970s.
